HONGKONG, SATURDAY, JANUARY 8, 1910.

A BENEVOLENT INDIAN MONEYLENDER.

What has come over the spirit of the Indian moneylender in Hongkong, when of his own accord he expresses his willingness to forego his pound of flesh? Time was when the moneylender was regarded as a usurer pure and simple and to our shame be it said in the light of the evidence given in a case in the debt court yesterday, we have on occasions denounced these rascally Indian vampires who fatten on the blood of the unfortunate poor. Now it seems that the Indian moneylender is not a human leech; rather he is a philanthropist, ready to come to the aid of his fellow man—with emphasis on the "man"—and help him over a way-side stile. But when we come to examine into the facts more closely we feel bound to confess that in no single respect does this moneylender bear out the general description of his tribe. It was not alleged that he charged interest—the most extraordinary feature of all. He did not proceed to the debtor's house and raise pandemonium in order to show him in the face of his neighbours. He did not expostulate, or ledge and contradict himself in Court, nor did he seek to make out that the only truthful man in Court was himself. What manner of man is this, we ask, to set up business as a money lender? He does not appear to know even the rudiments of the game in which bully-rugging and high finance are interchangeable terms. Gunda Singh is a watchman and he lent certain parties, a man and a woman, $450 on a promissory note. It may be asked by the inquisitive reader—where did Gunda get all that money? Assuming that he has been a watchman for a number of years at $70 a month and that he saved at the rate of $60 a year, how long would it take him to bring his banking account up to the figure stated. The reader can work it out for himself, but it is quite evident that the average Indian has some private source of income which is beyond the knowledge of the ordinary European. Because this is not the first time that Indian watchmen have appeared in Court as money-lending creditors of large amounts. In the majority of these cases we have not been interested in the amount lent so much as in the enormous rate of interest charged. We can recall half a dozen cases in which the rate per annum ran well over 250 per cent, with the result of course that the more the borrower had to pay the deeper he dived into debt. But Gunda Singh, who seems to be a second edition of a Gunda Diny is made of different clay, for, as we have said, there was no mention of interest by the plaintiff when the parties came into Court. The defendants declared that they had made payments amounting to $130, when his Lordship, purely off his own bat, so to speak, said: "But that was paid as interest. You cannot take that off." Nobody seems to have replied to that, because the argument was immediately shifted and the suggestion was made that the plaintiff should agree to regard the debt as being $320. "Nothing doing," said the plaintiff in effect, and accordingly the woman in the case proceeded to declare that the money had been paid, but whether as interest or return of capital did not transpire. Now we come to the crucial point, for we read that: "Plaintiff denied having received the money, but agreed, if the first defendant would go into the box and state on oath that the money had been paid, to accept his statement and agree to judgment for $320." Here is a fine example of the Indian regard for a lady. The female defendant had sworn on her oath that the money had been paid, but the plaintiff was not satisfied. In fact he bluntly insinuated that he was not born yesterday nor was he on the outlook for fairy tales. But if the male defendant said the money had been paid then well and good. Man to man they could believe one another, but when it was a case of a woman's truthfulness he preferred to stand aside. This is a sad aspect of life in the Orient. We wonder whether this Indian watchman is the possessor of what used to be called a zenana?—at least that was the word used in those old forgotten days when black, scowling tramps managed to cadge our last threepenny-bit on the plea that it would be spent on zenanas. What they wanted to get into the zenanas for we haven't the slightest idea, but in our imaginative youth we figured out that a zenana and a nautch dance were very nearly synonymous. Of course we know better now, worse luck, but we still regret that succession of pennies which went into the capacious pockets of the licensed band of mendicants. To resume, however. If that Indian owns a zenana and a plentiful store of wives we wonder what sort of reception he got last night when they learned that he scorned a woman's word? Did Mrs. Gunda Singh imitate the notorious Mrs. Coudle and "roundly berate her spouse, or did she welcome him home with the remark that everything in the garden's lovely? At all events, when the male defendant went into the box and swore that payments on account had been made, the plaintiff accepted the situation and the Court entered judgment for $320. In the circumstances we do not understand why the case was brought into Court at all. The debt was not denied and the plaintiff acquiesced on the statement that payments had been made. Where was the case? It is somewhat disappointing, however, that none of the papers give the address of this benevolent Indian watchman who will lend you $450 and take your word for it that you have paid it back. Such an omission amounts to gross negligence.

RICKETY RICKSHAS.

It is an old question to bring up, that regarding the condition of the rickshas in Hongkong, and we should not think of referring to it, were it not that a description is given in a Northern contemporary of the methods adopted to discover whether the vehicle is in a fit condition to ply for hire. Some time ago, when what are known as "first-class" rickshas were introduced into Hongkong, everybody was led to expect that the good time had arrived when we should skim across the ground like swallows over the surface of a pool. We were told how admirably arranged these machines were, special care had been taken in their construction, how the tyres were of the most fashionable make, and how the pullers were selected from the crème de la crème of Chinese athletes, who had been super-educated in the art of politeness and courtesy. There were many people who thought the prospect too good to be true, but most of us being ready to believe anything which would relieve us from the dominance of the yelling bandits who poured the streets accepted the statements as gospel readings. To make a long story short, we were like the proverbial stranger. All the difference we could see in the first-class vehicles was that they were rubber-tyred and some of them painted in the most atrocious hues, calculated to give the liverish individual jaundice at first sight. That would not have been so bad if the wheels had been securely fixed, but there does not seem to be in Hongkong a single licensed ricksha which is not tottery and in constant danger of depositing the fare in the mud. Of course that is due to the fact that the pullers insist on running along the tram rails, and as a consequence when a rail projects above the level of the roadway the ricksha performs a violent dream dance to the great delight of onlookers and the consternation of the passenger. Probably it would be impossible to prevent the pullers using the tram line as a sort of racing track, but if that could be done then something would have been achieved. What we cannot understand is how these old dilapidated machines came to be passed and licensed, and how pullers who are on the verge of the grave and cannot run two steps are allowed to drag out their miserable lives by the sanction of the authorities in this cruel fashion. In Shanghai we learn that the work of the ricksha depot is carried out by a foreign sergeant and six native constables. During the morning their time is occupied by the inspection of rickshas submitted for examination by owners who wish to take out licences during the following quarter. From 2 to 3 p.m. rickshas for which licences have been suspended are examined, and if found satisfactory, the licences are returned. Old rickshas brought in from the various stations are examined between 3 and 5 p.m. It should be mentioned that there is a recognized scale of licence suspension. The term of suspension ranges from four days for an old cover, rain apron etc., to seven days for having no rain apron, an old, a young or a sick coolie, old wheels etc., fourteen days for having a coolie blind in one eye and a month for an old and unsafe ricksha. For the more serious defects the owner may also be prosecuted. But it is the test by which vehicles are found to be fit for service or otherwise to which we would call the attention of the Hongkong police. The N. C. Daily News says: "The test to which a ricksha brought in for inspection is subjected is a pretty severe one. In former years the inspecting officer was armed only with a hammer, and there was considerable discontent among owners because of the damage done to really sound vehicles. Now the only tool used is a screw-driver, with which the officer pokes various parts of the body of the ricksha to see that it is made of sound wood. The real test comes when the ricksha is raised on one wheel, the officer places his foot on the bottom rim of the other and gives it a quick downward jerk. If the axle or any part of the wheel is jerry-built it is hardly possible that it will survive this test which is tried first on one side and then on the other. Assuming that the ricksha passes muster the licence number is stamped on the wheels and body, and stencilled on the hood, rain apron, and coolie's uniform and hat. If the vehicle collapses under the test it is taken away, to be used as firewood if the damage is beyond repair, or to be mended if the defect discovered is a trifling one. The licence plates are removed from defective rickshas and are not returned to the owner until the period of suspension has elapsed and the ricksha has successfully passed inspection. The procedure might well be cut out and posted up in the office of the ricksha inspector in Hongkong."

QUAINT VAPOURINGS.

A curiously discursive article on Far Eastern affairs appears in a recent number of the Poll. It is entitled in which all sorts of things are mixed up in a general hotch-potch. We have not the faintest idea who the writer may be, but as he is described as a special correspondent he is presumably of some position. At the same time, one wonders where he got all his information from, especially his generalisations. In dealing with the shipping trade he, as a Britisher, naturally arrives at the conclusion that the only nation which is cut of the running is Great Britain. Germany and Japan are the most determined runners in the race, which implies, of course, that the red eagle is nowhere to be seen. "Many of us (says the writer) will still remember the aggressive declaration of policy by the chief shipping firm in Japan some years ago. The result of that policy is now apparent in the six fine new 9,000-ton liners of the Nippon Yusen Kaisha trading between Japan and London. The North German Lloyd Company, too, keeps some of its biggest and most modern vessels on the Far Eastern service, but the chief British company, the P. & O., only occasionally sends one of its crack liners direct to China and Japan." Granted that the N. D. L. and N. Y. K. are getting along famously that is not to say the P. & O. has left the field. But of late years there has been a tendency to throw cold water on the efforts of the British company to compete with its active and heavily subsidised rivals, with the result that those who began the movement of depreciation are beginning to persuade themselves that their original taradiddles were an actual fact. The truth is, of course, that all the shipping lines in the Orient are finding it the most difficult thing in the world to make ends meet. Even the Japanese companies which have many advantages in their favour cannot that they are anxiously awaiting a revival of transport business not only on the European line, but also on the lines running to South America and the United States. The P. & O. Company goes its way without fuss or complaint, and all we know about its doings is from what transpires at the half-yearly and yearly meetings, and then we don't learn too much. But it must not be forgotten that at the last meeting of the P. & O. Company, the chairman referred to the Post Office payment for the carriage of mails, and from his comments we gathered that the payment was so low as to be practically unprofitable to the Company. If that be so, then the main contention that the P. & O. receives a subsidy on the same lines as its rivals will not prevail. To return to the P. M. G. writer, he says that "The Eastern passenger traffic is very considerable in these days, and there is no doubt that, by sending the best ships East, the Norddeutscher Lloyd Company is getting a bigger share than is comforting to the Britisher. In fact, the N. D. L. steamers, with their direct service, are looked upon as the passenger liners." The Japanese score by reason of their cheaper fares. The English companies are probably holding their own as regards cargoes, but John Chisholm (and he counts in these matters) is as yet very likely to be impressed by noise and show, and he very probably thinks that the nation which can fly its flag on the biggest ships is the commanding nation. He is seeing a lot of the German flag just now in Hongkong and Shanghai, to say nothing of the coast ports. He is also seeing a good deal of the Japanese. All these half-truths are just the food for the rabid people who only rejoice when evidence or no evidence is forthcoming that the country is going to the dogs. To turn to another point, our friend the writer having solved the shipping secret, turns to Canton for news and proceeds to turn his information into this form: "The news that the Europeans in Canton, in view of the friction between China and the Portuguese colony of Macao, have decided to form a volunteer corps (presumably to protect their own interests, if necessary), reminds us that China is very much the same as of old in the opinion of people on the spot. What China, in these days of self-assertion will think of this veiled denial of her ability to protect foreigners in her own country is another matter." Now what is one to make of that? Does the P. M. G. man think that the British, German and French volunteers numbering a handful at the best and all busily engaged in commercial life, are to throw up their jobs and march off to Macao in order to save the Portuguese against Chinese aggression? If he does then his imagination is sublime. Incidentally he refers to Shanghai and actually has a word to say about Hongkong: "Canton, of course, only following the example of Shanghai, which has possessed for years a fine, efficient foreign volunteer corps which has done good work. Various nationalities have their respective companies, and recently even a Chinese company was inaugurated. Another small, but efficient, corps of volunteers in the Far East is that at Hongkong, although they are somewhat overshadowed by the garrison soldiers of that British Crown Colony. There are under 300 members." He tries to get in a joke about a call to arms when the Commandant took the field in a dress suit and so scared the natives that they are running yet. That is exactly the sort of stuff the "authority" in question should stick to; then he is on sure ground. He will have a wide field and no competitors in dishing up fatuous fancies.

OPIMUM IN MANILA.

CONSULAR REPORT.

The prohibition of the use of all forms of opium, except medicinally, in Manila, put in force in March, 1908, caused a panic amongst the habitual eaters and smokers, says the Consular report for the Philippine Islands; but these were able to obtain relief from their sufferings through the care of the Government authorities, who provided hospital treatment, which was in many instances successful. This item no longer figures in the customs returns, the importation of the drug being absolutely prohibited since March 7, 1908, except for medicinal purposes on account of the Government. There is reason to suppose that a considerable quantity is being smuggled into the country, but the customs authorities are taking drastic measures for the suppression of the traffic; a very complete search of every ship entering the waters of Manila, and the strictest police supervision of smuggling brought to light are prosecuted with vigour, while reports are sent when opium is found on board.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

THE C-METERY CONTROVERSY.

In England, the coming general elections would seem to monopolise public attention, but out here in Hongkong, since there is no such thing as the passion of party strife to enliven the dull routine of our lives, the weird subject of cemeteries and monuments would appear to be the burning question of the day. It really does seem strange in this enlightened age that so much time and breath should be expended over a question which is of little public interest and which can hardly be said to conduce to a feeling of harmony among the various sections of Hongkong's cosmopolitan community but which everybody will agree is a matter which should best be left alone. Readers may probably have read of a budding lady novelist who is shortly to visit Hongkong and who has announced her intention of writing up her impressions of the Colony. I wonder if our latest critic will introduce the exhilarating topic of graves into her impressions. Great Scott! I dread to contemplate the sneers which will be showered upon us from sources wide and otherwise. We shall be charged with being prone, after talk of commercial depression has ceased somewhat, to invent fresh outlets for our superfluous intelligence and discuss the unknown mysteries of the graveyard. Really the grave question is becoming a grave scandal which should be slipped in the bud. The perpetrator of this heroic act would deserve well of his fellow-creatures.

"SCIRMS MANUFACTURED HERE." Another screaming farce which was enacted at the last meeting of the Sanitary Board was the startling proposal of the Head of the Sanitary Department to treat certain correspondence, which was apparently to be treated in the usual way as confidential. The secret indisposition of some of the members present may well be imagined when it is said that there was nothing of a secret nature in the correspondence in question, but the idea originated with one of the honourable members who appears to have had in mind the prevention of a public scare. The principle underlying the idea was doubtless well-meaning but it was extremely misguided, for any attempt to consider in camera correspondence to which the ratepayers were plainly entitled would have surely tended to create that very feeling which the authorities sought, and rightly so, to guard against.

A SCIENTIST'S VIEWS. A number of eminent astronomers have lately been making researches into the appearance of Halley's Comet. One of the scientists declares that the tail of the comet may strike the earth next May, but the views which can claim the greatest amount of attention are undoubtedly those expressed by M. Flammarion, as they are likely to seriously affect all of us if the scientist's theories are based on solid foundations. M. Flammarion frankly declares that it is likely that the oxygen in the atmosphere will, at the time of the appearance of the comet, combine with the hydrogen of the comet's tail and would thus bring about the death of the inhabitants of the earth through suffocation. If, on the contrary, there were a diminution of nitrogen, an unexpected sensation of physical activity would be experienced by everyone, and the human race would perish in a paroxysm of joy and delirium, probably delighted at its fate. How many are there in Hongkong who would look forward to such a prospect with unalloyed joy? Probably not many, as there are few of us who are eager to die just yet. The end of the world was long ago predicted by such famous characters as "Old Moore" and his satellites, but the respective periods assigned for the destruction of the universe have long ago come and gone and still this beautiful world of ours manages to jog along in the good old way. So my readers can congratulate themselves, at least for the present, that they are free from the wholesale massacre predicted by M. Flammarion.

THE MONEY LENDING CURSE. At almost regular intervals, readers of the local papers are afforded an opportunity of seeing for themselves the mischief wrought by Indian money-lenders. The yoke of the usurer is as pronounced as ever and one is sometimes tempted to ask oneself by what peculiar process of British justice, which is so unbending in other respects, are these social vampires freely allowed to squander extortionate interest which has brought about the ruin of many a humble home? A report on the Indo-Chinese Tarakan trade via Latakia for the year ending 31st March, 1909, just published, contains the following by the British Consul: "Money-lending, a business in which the Hindus from Shikarpur have been engaged in this country for many years, has been put a stop to by the Chinese Governor, and I am helping the Chinese to trample on the curse." Cannot the local authorities take the same step? By affording these contemptible nurseries free access to the local courts to recover their extortionate charges, the law does not only allow them to recover their loans tenfold but provides a direct encouragement for the carrying on of the doubtful practice. It is a startling fact but it is true.

WHERE THE MILK WENT. Last week I remember feeling my readers to some milk topics (mind the Milk Way, as Halley's comet is approaching) and here is another milk yarn which the majority of people with a sense of humour may perhaps appreciate. A teacher was giving a lesson on the Cow. She was trying to impress on the young minds the various uses of milk. Butter, cheese, etc., had been disposed of and she was at some bright child to tell how the farmer gave the surplus milk to the pigs. Landing up to this, she asked this question: "Now, children, after the farmer has made all his butter and cheese he needs and uses what milk he wants for his family, what does he do with the milk that still remains?" A small boy of about seven or eight, who had been sitting in the front row, said: "The teacher said that the farmer gave the surplus milk to the pigs." Landing up to this, she asked this question: "Now, children, after the farmer has made all his butter and cheese he needs and uses what milk he wants for his family, what does he do with the milk that still remains?" A small boy of about seven or eight, who had been sitting in the front row, said: "The teacher said that the farmer gave the surplus milk to the pigs."

PHILHARMONIC CONCERT.

LAST NIGHT'S MUSICAL TREAT.

The Hongkong Philharmonic Society last night provided a fairly large audience with one of those delightful musical evenings for which the members of the Society are responsible at regular intervals. The concert, as usual, was under the able conductors of Mr. Denman Fuller, and, as has already been remarked, proved a huge success. The first part of the programme opened with a ballad entitled "The Miller's Wooing" by chorus and orchestra, which was rendered in an able manner. "Son of Mine" by Mr. C. K. Lloyd, R.M., was given in a pleasant baritone voice which was heard to great advantage. Mr. Lloyd as an encore contributed the song "I Live for You." Mrs. E. G. Barrett, who is always a favourite with Hongkong audiences, then appeared in a couple of bracketed items called "My Love for You" and "The Dawn of Joy," which were warmly applauded, the singer having to reappear and repeat the second item. The next item was a Duo Concerto (piano and violin) by Mrs. Cousins and Mr. A. S. Tuxford, which was well received. The gem of the first portion of the programme was reserved for the last. This was the stirring song "Tubal Cain" with orchestral accompaniment and the way in which the difficult composition was given reflects the highest credit on conductor and performers alike.

The second part of the programme was devoted to two items. The first of these was described as a Rondo Brilliant (piano and orchestra) by Mr. Denman Fuller, with Mr. A. S. Tuxford as conductor. The piece in the hands of such a player as Mr. Fuller could not but have been a success and the audience would not cry content until the player gave as an encore a pianoforte solo. The second item was Longfellow's famous poem "The Wreck of the Hesperus," orchestrated for the concert by Mr. Denman Fuller. Hongkongers have been made familiar with this classical item but with each successive appearance of Mr. Fuller's talented combination in the piece, the interest of the audience never lags but is at once aroused as if the composition was presented to them for the first time. The poem was rendered with great gusto and was a fitting conclusion to a successful concert.

CLERGYMAN'S EXPERIENCES IN CHINA.

The Rev. E. J. Hardy, M.A., the author of a well-known book, "How to be Happy Through Marriage," and for some time a missionary in China, when he paid a visit to Japan, gives a short account of his life in the Far East in Mr. T. P. O'Connor's journal, M.A.P. He says:—

"How to get married? is a problem on which I have been tempted to write before I produced 'Concerning Marriage,' in 1901.

"I was amazed at the red tape connected with it. I remember, when I was stationed in Hongkong, that I went to Canton on one occasion, in order to take some services, for there was no clergyman there, and an English doctor in the place asked me to put up his name of marriage. I asked him for the address of his intended. He told me she had no address, for she was on the sea, travelling out to him.

"It was necessary that the particulars should be filled in, and, as I was wondering what to do, for the doctor wanted to get married as soon as his intended arrived, it occurred to me that Stepeny in the seaman's parish, and all children born at sea are registered as of that parish. I, therefore, determined to register the young lady as in the parish of Stepeny; and in that way solved the problem to his satisfaction.

"The Chinese nation I regard as the greatest on earth, for the Chinaman can live on next to nothing, and he has no fear of death. Their intelligence is remarkable, and so is their power of adaptability. When I first went out to Hongkong I found a large number of the soldiers in some of the outlying districts up the Yangtze were armed with only bows and arrows. Three years later, when I went there again, they were fully equipped with excellent rifles and were well drilled. The only peculiarity was that they knelt to present arms.

"I was in Peking at the end of the Boxer trouble; and though I was advised not to go out, lest the mob should attempt violence because I was a foreigner, I paid no attention to the advice.

"Only on one occasion was I menaced in any way. Then I was surrounded by some 3,000 people, and I thought from their action that I was going to be killed. It occurred to me, however, that I had had a tooth covered with gold in San Francisco. I pointed to it, and at once the simple people thought I must be a demi-god, and became quite friendly. They even took me into one of the temples and showed me admiringly to the priests, because of my golden tooth.

"You make me sad when you ask about my first success. What is first success, when set over against lasting failure? Who can say that he has used more than half the opportunities of his life?

"Success is a vague term, and the estimation of it differs in each country. The Chinese ask a stranger: 'How many children have you?' and if he answers, 'No boys' (girls do not count), he is thought anything but successful. 'They would consider Messrs. Balfour and Haldane, the Bishop of London, Lord Kitchener, and other public men who are celebrated as failures for that reason. The poorest coddle having a son would be considered more successful than all these famous celebrities put together.'

COMMERCIAL.

FRIED MARKET.

Messrs. Lamke and Rogge write in their fortnightly report of to-day's date:—

There is not much change to report since issue of our last circular under date of 25th ultimo, only a moderate volume of business was consummated, chiefly made up by fixtures of tonnage for coal requirements. There is no particular activity in any special trade. Owing to the approach of Chinese New Year charters do not feel much inclined to take up any tonnage arriving at loading or discharging port close to the coming holidays, in consequence of which rates in some instances have slightly receded, whilst supply of tonnage seeking employment is gradually increasing. We anticipate that there will not be much doing in the way of chartering before Chinese New Year is past.

Saigon-Hongkong.—As for prompt loading after the fixture of one boat at 1 1/2 cents, the inquiry has altogether died out. For forward loading in February charters have continued trying to contract for tonnage for consecutive trips, but their attempts have so far proved futile, owners considering the rates held out inadequate and expect to do better by waiting.

Saigon-Singapore.—Has had a fixture on lump-sum basis; equivalent to about 1 1/2 cents Saigon currency per picul.

Saigon/Java and Java/Hongkong.—There is no demand for outside tonnage, regular liners being sufficient to meet requirements. The Norw. s.s. Brand has been taken up for Java trade, delivery in March, 9 months on private terms.

Saigon/Philippines.—There has been no change for the better since last writing.

Dalby and Chefoo to Canton.—Only one fixture has transpired at the reduced rate of 2 1/2 cents. The price of barge having advanced considerably, charterers do not care to go into fresh operations for the time being.

Yangtze River freights.—Two outside boats have been taken up for Canton on lump-sum basis, equivalent to about 16 cents per picul.

Timber freights.—An inquiry for a suitable boat from Singapore to Shanghai, which has been in our market since the s.s. Ragnar founded in October last, has now been filled by the s.s. Brand.

Coal freights.—Coal tonnage from Moji to Hongkong is still difficult to obtain, and fixtures during this fortnight have been confined to Japanese tonnage only. The following rates have been paid: Karatsu to Hongkong $1.25, Moji to Hongkong $1.00, option part cargo to Canton at $2.50, Hongkong to Canton $1.20 $1.70, Port Courbet (located between Hongkong and Haiphong) to Canton $1.90, Wakamatsu to Swatow $2.35, Miike to Singapore $3.00, Haiphong to Canton $1.70, and Wakamatsu to Canton $1.55 per ton.

Sail Tonnage Loading or to Lead:—For Baltimore and New York:—British ship Lynd-Aurel, 2,311 tons, arrived 25th September. British barque Comet arrived 18th November. Sail Tonnage Disengaged:—None.

Departure of Sailers:—British ship Jutropolis 3rd January for Baltimore and New York.

THE WEATHER.

The following report is from Mr. F. G. Figg, Director of the Hongkong Observatory:—

On the 8th at 2.10 p.m.—The barometer has risen considerably in E. Japan, and fallen rapidly over N. China.

A rather deep depression which has advanced Eastwards from the Yangtze valley, is moving into the Yellow Sea.

The depression lying to the North of Japan yesterday day, has moved away over the Pacific, and pressure is now again over E. Japan.

The monsoon is expected to freshen considerably in the Formosa Channel and over the northern shores of the China Sea by to-morrow.

Hongkong Rainfall for the 24 hours ending at 10 a.m. to-day, 0.00 inches.

FORECAST.

- 1.—Hongkong and Neighbourhood, N. E. winds, probably freshening; fair at first, some rain later.
- 2.—Formosa Channel, same as No. 1.
- 3.—South coast of China between Hongkong and Lintao, same as No. 1.
- 4.—South coast of China between Hongkong and Hainan, same as No. 1.

A CHINAMAN was this morning placed before Mr. J. R. Wood, Second Police Magistrate, on a charge of obtaining the sum of $500 odd from a compatriot by means of false pretences. The story of the prosecution is that an alleged agreement was concluded between the parties for a ship certain Chinese to America, and that defendant failed to do this, hence the prosecution. Mr. F. C. Balfour prosecuted, and Mr. J. H. Gardner defended. The case was remanded, bail being allowed in the sum of $400.

MOTOR-BOAT TRIAL TRIP.

FOR WUCHOW-HANGING SERVICE.

By the successful launching of the motor-boat, Chit On, built by Messrs. J. W. Kew and Company, this morning, a valuable addition has been made to the motor-boat service recently inaugurated between Wuchow and Nanking. This latest vessel from the well-known Kwong Hip Lung Company's yards was launched at Hungghom this morning in the presence of local Press representatives through the courtesy of the builders, and judged from the results of the trial trip, the motor-boat has undoubtedly a great future before it.

Following are some particulars regarding the Chit On—The Chit On is a shallow draught, tunnel-stern motor-boat with a length of 78 ft. beam, 14' 6", and draught, with passengers and about 35 tons of cargo, 276". The boat is fitted with a Gardner kerosene motor of 75 H.P. H. P. Gardner's patent reverse gear, solid-bronze propeller and magneto ignition. The kerosene fuel is fed under pressure, and forced lubrication is automatically effected. Messrs. J. W. Kew and Co. are the sole agents for Gardner motors, and this is the fifth vessel of her kind which has been built under their supervision.

The boat is for service on the upper reaches of the West River, where, with her four sisterships, it is anticipated she will assist materially in the development and improvement of the riverine traffic. That these motor-boats are pre-eminently successful and filling an urgent and long-felt want, is amply demonstrated by the building of these five commodious vessels within three years of the inception of the service. The shallowness of the river in the dry season precludes the employment of vessels of greater draught than 2' 6", in fact, there is often a less depth than 2' to be negotiated, and the advent of these motor-boats has been hailed with delight and universal satisfaction by the vast population of the towns on the river and in the adjacent country. The innovation has caused a change in locomotion which might be compared to that effected in the West when the "Iron-Horse" superseded the stage coaches. The single journey between Wuchow and Nanking, in the days of the native junk, often occupied a month, whereas the round trip has been performed recently by one of these boats in the marvellous time of four and a half days.

Messrs. Kew & Co. have just completed a handsome 30-ft launch with a 10 H.P. Gardner kerosene motor installed, which is intended as a pleasure boat for H. E. Tai-tai Chu of Canton. A similar boat for Pakhoi is on the stocks with a draft loaded 12 inches only. There is an ever increasing demand for vessels propelled by motor engines, and there is undoubtedly a great future for them on the numerous waterways of China. Let us hope that Hongkong will always maintain the lead in the construction and supply of them.
